It is generally helpful to include a sentence or two on the background or premise of the study. PURPOSE: A specific purpose or purposes of the study go here. You may also include hypotheses. METHODS: Methods should be detailed enough for readers to generally discern who the subjects were, how the study was completed, highlighting the most salient techniques, and a brief overview of the major statistics used, as well as summary stats format. RESULTS: Results should highlight the most meaningful findings using appropriate summary statistics and comparisons (where applicable) WITH p-values (i.e., present both). CONCLUSION: Using a sentence or two summarize the overall take home message of the study. SIGNIFANCE/NOVELTY: Explain how your study adds to the body of knowledge either through a novel/unexpected finding OR a reiteration supporting prior knowledge. In other words, if your study replicates earlier work, note why that is important.
